

Roommate enters the kitchen to open the fridge and bread basket....

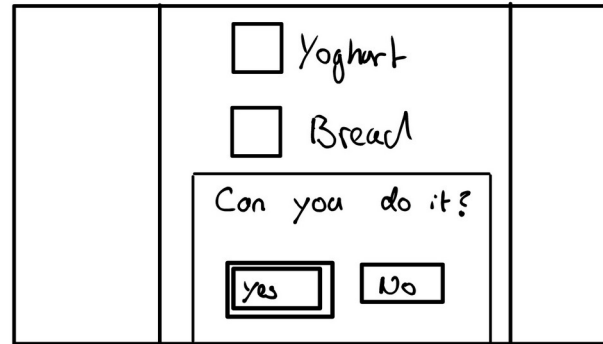

Only to spot that items are missing. In this case milk, bread and yoghurt.

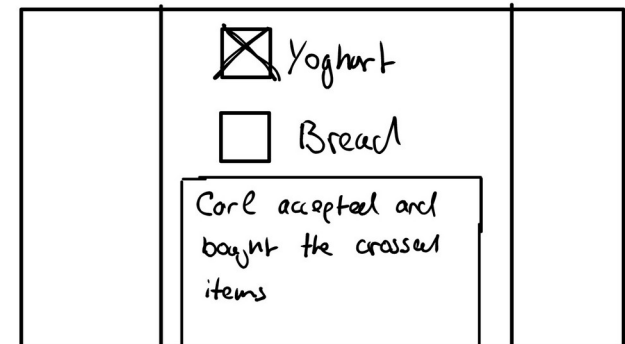

They take out our flat-sharing app to begin a new shopping list

And add the items they need to restock

Another roommate currently still at university gets a pop up and a description of the needed items. In order to ensure that not multiple roommates buy the items on the list, they need to accept the list.

The other roommates see that Carl in this case, accepted the list and has already bought the crossed out items.